

as well as post-traumatic stress disorder.

So I wholeheartedly urge the passage of this resolution in the hope that we will not only recognize those who blazed the trail for us but that we will increase awareness of the need to continue the advancement of civil rights and liberties for all Americans.

I urge the VA specifically to recognize the unique struggle of many minority veterans and to, accordingly, ensure that they receive all of the benefits and care that they have earned and that they deserve. Passing this resolution is the least we can do for these veterans who have done so much for our country.

I urge the passage of this legislation.

HONORING THE LIFE OF SARAH MOORE GREENE ON HER 100TH BIRTHDAY

(Mr. DUNCAN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. DUNCAN. Mr. Speaker, today is the 100th birthday of a great lady and Tennessee icon, Sarah Moore Greene.

Ms. Greene has been both a national leader and a leader in our hometown of Knoxville. By the way, she still attends many events, and is always dressed like a fashion model. She has served on the national board of directors for the NAACP, and has been a delegate to numerous Republican national conventions.

My father served as mayor of Knoxville for almost 6 years from early 1959 through the end of 1964. During that time, Knoxville received the All-American City award from Look magazine, primarily because it had the most peaceful integration of almost any major city. Sarah Moore Greene and my father led the effort to peacefully integrate our city.

Mrs. Greene has touched thousands of lives in good and positive ways through her years as a teacher and through her work in the community. She has helped countless numbers, young and old, but her special love is her children, both the hundreds she taught and the thousands who have attended the Sarah Moore Greene Elementary School.

Mr. Speaker, this Nation is a better place today because of my friend Sarah Moore Greene, a great American.

SORROW AND OUTRAGE AT THE DEATH OF CUBAN DISSIDENT ORLANDO ZAPATA TAMAYO

(Mr. MCGOVERN asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. MCGOVERN. Mr. Speaker, I want to express my deepest sorrow and outrage at the death of Cuban dissident Orlando Zapata Tamayo. Imprisoned since 2003, he had been on a hunger strike for several weeks. He first heard he was seriously ill last week, and yesterday, he died at the prison clinic.

Zapata Tamayo paid the ultimate sacrifice for his commitment to changing Cuba's system. He commands our respect. No one has starved himself to death in a Cuban prison in over 40 years. Surely, the Cuban Government could have and should have intervened earlier to have prevented this tragedy. His death is on their conscience.

I have always felt and continue to believe that, if we are truly going to do a better job of standing with the Cuban people, then we need to be closer to them and in greater numbers. We need to travel freely to the island to meet and to learn from them and they from us. I hope that day comes soon so we can tell all of the Cuban people that we remember the sacrifice of Orlando Zapata Tamayo.

ACTIVISTS: CUBA DISSIDENT DIES AFTER HUNGER STRIKE

Havana—An opposition political activist imprisoned since 2003 died Tuesday after a lengthy hunger strike, members of Cuba's human rights community said.

Orlando Zapata Tamayo, who was jailed on charges including disrespecting authority, died at a clinic at Havana's Combinado del Este prison, according to Vladimiro Roca, a leading dissident who said he spoke to Zapata Tamayo's family.

Zapata Tamayo, 42, was not among the island's best-known dissidents. He was arrested in 2003 on charges of disrespecting authority, said Elizardo Sanchez, head of the Havana-based, independent Cuban Commission on Human Rights and National Reconciliation.

He was sentenced to three years in prison, which Sanchez said was lengthened to 25 years, in part because of his political activism while behind bars.

Sanchez said Zapata Tamayo staged a hunger strike for weeks before his death. His family first announced last week that prison doctors said he was gravely ill.

Relatives were transporting Zapata Tamayo's remains to his hometown in Holguin province, said Roca, a former fighter pilot and son of a legendary communist leader who served nearly five years in prison himself for his opposition political beliefs.

Word of Zapata Tamayo's death was first reported on Cuban exile radio stations in southern Florida, which broadcast an interview with his mother, Reina Luisa Tamayo.

Rep. Lincoln Diaz-Balart, a Republican from Florida—and the nephew of Fidel Castro's ex-wife, Mirta Diaz-Balart—said on the floor of the U.S. Congress on Tuesday that the dissident's "condition and fate are the Castro brothers' doing."

Hours later, as news of Zapata Tamayo's death spread, the congressman issued a second statement declaring that his "murder by the tyrant Fidel Castro and his cowardly jailers will never be forgotten."

U.S. Sen. Bill Nelson, of Florida, said in his own statement that "freedom-loving people everywhere should hold the Cuban regime responsible for the fate of Orlando Zapata Tamayo."

"His reported death today is a sad reminder of the tragic cost of oppression and a dictatorship that devalues human life," Nelson said.

Democratic U.S. Rep. Kendrick Meek, also of Florida, noted that Amnesty International declared Zapata Tamayo a "prisoner of conscience" in 2003.

"The Cuban government's stunning lack of respect for human rights was highlighted by Orlando as much in his life as in his death," Meek said in a statement.

EMPOWERMENT

(Mr. NEUGEBAUER asked and was given permission to address the House for 1 minute and to revise and extend his remarks.)

Mr. NEUGEBAUER. Mr. Speaker, just last week, I was traveling across my district to ask the people in the 19th Congressional District, How do we move America away from this entitlement mode, which we seem to be moving toward, and back to an empowerment mode so we can create jobs?

With 9.2 percent of the American people unemployed, people want to know what we are going to do about jobs. What they do know is that the government can't continue what it has been doing, which is taxing too much, spending too much, and borrowing too much—mortgaging the future of our future generations.

I asked a number of businesspeople, Why aren't you hiring more people? Why aren't you expanding your plants?

The overriding answer was, Congressman, it's too uncertain right now. Congress is talking about raising our taxes, imposing insurance on us, talking about more regulation, raising the cost of energy in this country. If you continue down that road, we can't create new businesses. In fact, in many cases, we will have to lay off people if we move in that direction.

So, Mr. Speaker, what we have to do is quit doing what we have been doing and get back to making America the great Nation it is by empowering the people. That means taking less taxes and letting businesses do what they know how to do, which is to create jobs. Take away the uncertainty of the business environment in this country
